It is an opportunity that we cannot afford to miss, and we are extremely favored to have Father Randall come and deliver this lecture to us.

Everyone in Antioch is invited to attend, and there will be no charge for admission. A silver offering will be taken for the benefit of St. Ignatius' share in the mission field. Come and bring all your friends. The lecture will begin at 8 o'clock in the evening.

On Saturday morning there will be a celebration of the holy communion in the church at 1:30, by Father Randall. Everyone should also come to this.

This Man Probably Never Heard of Grass Lake

The Detroit Free Press in a recent article names what they state are the only lotus beds in the world. These beds are located at Sunset Lake, Vicksburg, Mich.; Toledo, Ohio, and near the Nile river, Egypt. The writer evidently does not know of the large lotus beds in Lake county. One of the largest, if not the largest lotus beds is located at Grass Lake. The beds at Grass Lake are over two miles square and contain millions of blossoms and are considered the most beautiful of all the species.

NEW LIBRARY TO OPEN ON SATURDAY

Many Books Have Been Obtained by Committee in Charge

RUMMAGE SALE SATURDAY

The library committee of the Woman's Club, who for several weeks has been busy collecting and cataloging books, and attending to the many details of the work involved in establishing even a small library, report that the doors will be opened to the public, Saturday afternoon, May 13th at 2 o'clock.

In connection with this opening a biscuit sale will held plus a sale of the community's white elephants.

To insure a real honest to goodness biscuit sale each member of the Woman's Club is asked to contribute two dozen light biscuits or rolls.

Should there be in the club some who love the cause, yet are not so situated as to be able to make biscuits, please send fifty cents to boost the good cause and prove your good will.

The white elephants will be received and cared for by the committee no matter at what hour of the day Saturday they may be brought in.

Bring or send them to the building whose sign is the "Pop corn Wagon". There they will be cared for, given a price tag and the privilege of trumpeting for Antioch's new library.

Don't fail to send the white elephants, every club members and every friend of the boys and girls of our community is asked to help that much and to send or bring to the committee some salable article, nothing is too large, the sidewalk will hold it, and nothing is too small since there is to be a ten cents counter inside.

The elephants may be in the form of dishes, furniture, pictures, rugs, cushions clothing, fancy work, shoes, canned fruit, farm products, eggs etc. No matter what form they may take, their welcome is assured, provided only that they are still useful and servicable.

Donors of articles for this sale are not limited to club members, but anyone man, woman, boy or girl, who may have in his possession some good and useful article which to him is useless or superfluous is asked to bring it to the this gathering of the elephants. Your neighbor may want it and be willing to pay for it, and the money will go to meet the needs of the new library.

Let us give whole hearted generous support to the committee in its effort to raise a little money by which to meet the necessary expense. It seems the least we can do.

Thus far the library proposition has met encouragement and most splendid response from the entire community as well as the surrounding country.

Crape-hangers, joy-killers, and croakers are few and far between.

Books, splendid good books, to the number of some two hundred and seventy have been donated and are ready to be put into circulation.

They may be taken home for two weeks by young or old, by the simple process of presenting a reference card properly signed.

We realize that had we one of Carnegie's millions our library would be a more pretentious institution but it is at least a start in the right direction. It is in capable hands and will continue to move steadily forward.

No better safeguard can be thrown around our boys and girls than to instill in them a love of good books. Only eternity will reveal and measure the influence of this little collection of good books called the Antioch Public Library.

One of the finest lectures of the year was given before the Woman's club at its last meeting by Ray O. Wyland. It stiffened the backbone of every American present.

We were greatly pleased to have with us such a large delegation from the High School and feel confident that for them it was an hour well spent.

Next Monday, May 15, at the usual hour of 3:30 p. m., we are to have with us Mr. Otis L. Trenary, as the speaker. He will speak on the subject of "Citizenship." To hear this speaker we again invite the pupils of the High School both boys and girls. Everybody come, we will see that more chairs are brought in and will be glad to welcome both teachers and pupils of the High School.

This lecture will close the literary program of the club year.

Ramsey Milholland

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Company

THE BOY, FATHER OF THE MAN.

Here's another of those Booth Tarkington boy-and-girl stories that set everyone laughing and living over again the days of youth. This one is much like "Penrod" and "Seventeen" and "The Ordeal." It's different, too, in that it carries Ramsey Milholland and Dora Yocum through school and college life to early maturity in the World War. So it's serious as well as funny, and it's one of Booth Tarkington's best of its kind. That's enough.

CHAPTER I.

When Johnnie comes marching home again.
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We'll give him a hearty welcome then,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
The men with cheers, the boys with shouts,
The ladies they will all turn out,
And we'll all feel gay, when Johnnie comes marching home again!

The old man and the little boy, his grandson, sat together in the shade of the big walnut tree in the front yard, watching the "Decoration Day Parade," as it passed up the long street; and when the last of the veterans was out of sight the grandfather murmured the words of the tune that came drifting back from the now distant band at the head of the procession.

"Did you, Grandpa?" the boy asked.

"Did I what?"

"Did you all feel gay when the army got home?"

"It didn't get home all at once, precisely," the grandfather explained. "When the war was over I suppose we felt relieved, more than anything else."

"You didn't feel so gay when the war was, though, I guess?" the boy ventured.

"I guess we didn't."

"Were you scared, Grandpa? Were you ever scared the Johnnies would win?"

"No. We weren't ever afraid of that."

"Well, weren't you ever scared yourself, Grandpa? I mean when you were in a battle."

"Oh, yes; I was." The old man laughed. "Scared plenty!"

"I don't see why," the boy said promptly. "I wouldn't be scared in a battle."

"Wouldn't you?"

"Course not! Grandpa, why don't you march in the Decoration Day parade? Wouldn't they let you?"

"I'm not able to march any more. Too short of breath and too shaky in the legs and too blind."

"I wouldn't care," said the boy. "I'd be in the parade anyway, if I was you. If I'd been in your place, Grandpa, and they'd let me be in that parade, I'd been right up by the band. Look, Grandpa! Watch me, Grandpa! This is the way I'd be, Grandpa!"

He rose from the garden bench where they sat, and gave a complex imitation of what had most appealed to him as the grandeur of the procession, his prancing legs simulating those of the horse of the grand marshal, while his upper parts rendered the drums and bugles of the band, as well as the officers and privates of the militia company which had been a feature of the parade. The only thing he left out was the detachment of veterans.

"Putty-boom! Putty-boom! Putty-boom-boom-boom!" he vociferated, as the drums—and then as the bugles: "Ta, ta, ta, tara!" He addressed his restive legs: "Whon, there, you Whitey! Gee! Haw! Glt up!" Then, waving an imaginary sword: "Column right! Farwad march! Halt! Carry harms!" He "shouldered arms," and returned to his seat.

"That'd be me, Grandpa. That's the way I'd do." And as the grandfather nodded, seeming to agree, a thought recently dismissed returned to the mind of the composite procession and he asked:

"Well, why weren't you ever afraid the Johnnies would whup the Unions, Grandpa?"

"Oh, we knew they couldn't."

"I guess so." The little boy laughed disdaintfully, thinking his question satisfactorily answered. "I guess those ole Johnnies couldn't whup a flea! They didn't know how to fight any at all, did they, Grandpa?"

"Oh, yes, they did!"

"What?" The boy was astounded.

"Weren't they all just reg'lar ole cowards, Grandpa?"

"No," said the grandfather. "They were pretty fine soldiers."

"They were? Well, they ran away whenever you began shootin' at 'em, didn't they?"

"Sometimes they did, but most times they didn't. Sometimes they fought like wildcats—and sometimes we were the ones that ran away."

"But the Johnnies were bad men, weren't they, Grandpa?"

"No."

The boy's forehead, customarily vacant, showed some little vertical shadows, produced by a struggle to think. "Well, but—" he began slowly. "Listen, Grandpa, listen here! You said you said you never got scared the ole Johnnies were goin' to win."

"They did win pretty often," said the grandfather. "They won a good many battles."

"I mean, you said you never got scared they'd win the war."

"No, we were never afraid of that."

"Well, but if they were good men and fought like wildcats, Grandpa, and kept winning battles and everything, how could that be? How could you help bein' scared they'd win the war?"

The grandfather's feeble eyes twinkled brightly. "Why, we knew they couldn't, Ramsey."

At this, the little vertical shadows on Ramsey's forehead became more pronounced, for he had succeeded in thinking. "Well, they didn't know they couldn't, did they?" he argued. "They thought they were goin' to win, didn't they?"

"Yes; I guess they did. But you see they were wrong."

"Well, but—" Ramsey struggled.

"Listen! Listen here, Grandpa! Well, anyway, if they never got scared we'd win, and nobody got scared they'd win—well, I don't see—"

But Ramsey found himself unable to continue his concentration. "Oh, nothin' much," he murmured.

"I see." And his grandfather laughed again. "You mean: If the Johnnies felt just as sure of winning the war as we did and kept winning battles, why shouldn't we ever have had any doubts we were going to win? That's it, isn't it?"

"I guess so, Grandpa."

"Well, I think it was mostly because we were certain that we were right."

"I see," said Ramsey. "The Johnnies knew they were on the side of the devil."

But at this, the grandfather's laugh was louder than it had been before, and Ramsey looked hurt. "Well, you can laugh if you want to!" he objected in an aggrieved voice. "Anyway, the Sunday school superintendent told us when people knew they were on the devil's side they always—"

"I dare say, I dare say," the old man interrupted, a little impatiently. "But in this world mighty few people think they're on the devil's side, Ramsey. The South thought the devil was on our side, you see."

"Well, that kind o' mixes it all up more'n ever."

"Suppose you look at it this way: The South was fighting for what it believed to be its right to be a country by itself; but we were fighting for 'Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable.' There's the reason we had the certain knowledge that we were going to win the war. How plain and simple it is!"

Ramsey didn't think so. He had begun to feel bored by the conversation, and to undergo the oppression he usually suffered in school. The earnest old voice of the veteran was only a sound in the boy's ears.

"Boom—" The veterans had begun to fire their cannon on the crest of the low hill, out at the cemetery; and from a little way down the street came the rat-a-tat of a toy drum and sounds of a life played execrably. A file of children in cocked hats made of newspapers came marching importantly up the sidewalk under the maple shade trees; and in advance, upon a velocipede, rode a tin-sworded personage, shrieking incessant commands but not concerning himself with whether or not any military obedience was thereby obtained. Here was a revivifying effect upon young Ramsey; his sluggish eyelids opened electrically; he leaped to his feet and, abandoning his grandfather without preface or apology, sped across the lawn and out of the gate, charging headlong upon the commander of the company.

"You get off that 'lopede, Wesley Bender!" he bellowed. "You gimme that sword! What rights you got to go bein' captain o' my army, I'd like to know! Who got up this army, in the first place, I'd like to know! I did, myself, yesterday afternoon, and you got back in line or I won't let you blong to it at all!"

The pretender succumbed; he instantly dismounted, being out-shouted and overawed. On foot he took his place in the ranks, while Ramsey became sternly vociferous. "Intention, company! Farwad march! Col-um-right! Right-showdler harms! Halt! Farwad march. Carry harms—"

The army went trudging away under the continuous but unheeded fire of orders, and presently disappeared round a corner, leaving the veteran chuckling feebly under his walnut tree and alone with the empty street. All trace of what he had said seemed to have been wiped from the grandson's mind; but memory has curious ways. Ramsey had understood not a fifth nor a tenth of his grandfather's talk, and already he had "forgotten" all of it—yet not only were there many, many times in the boy's later life when, without ascertainable cause, he would remember words and sentences spoken by the grandfather, though the listener, half-drowsily, had heard but the sound of an old, earnest voice—and even the veteran's meaning finally took on a greater definiteness till it became, in the grandson's thoughts, something clear and bright and beautiful that he knew without being, just sure where or how he had learned it.

CHAPTER II

Ramsey Milholland sat miserably in school, his conscious being consisting principally of a dull hate. Torpor was a little dispersed during a fifteen-minute interval of "Music," when he and all the other pupils in the large room of the "Five B. Grade" sang repeatedly fractions of what they enunciated as "The Star Span-guh-hulled Banner"; but afterward he relapsed into the low spirits and animosity natural to anybody during enforced confinement under instruction. No alleviation was accomplished by an invader's temporary usurpation of the teacher's platform, a brisk and unsympathetically cheerful young woman mounting thereon to "teach German."

For a long time mathematics and German had been about equally repulsive to Ramsey, who found himself daily in the compulsory presence of both; but he was gradually coming to regard German with the greater horror, because, after months of patient mental resistance, he at last began to comprehend that the German language has sixteen special and particular ways of using the German article, corresponding to that flexible bit of a word so easily managed in English—the. What in the world was the use of having sixteen ways of doing a thing that could just as well be done in one? If the Germans had contented themselves with insisting upon sixteen useless variations for infrequent words, such as hippopotamus, for instance, Ramsey might have thought the affair unreasonable but not necessarily vicious—it would be easy enough to avoid talking about a hippopotamus if he ever had to go to Germany. But the fact that the Germans picked out a and the and many other little words in use all the time, and gave every one of them sixteen forms, and expected Ramsey Milholland to learn this dizzy uselessness down to the last crotchety detail, with "When to employ Which" as a nausea to prepare for the final convulsion when one didn't use Which, because it was an "Exception"—there was a fashion of making easy matters hard that was merely hellish.

The teacher was strict but enthusiastic; she told the children, over and over, that the German was a beautiful language, and her face always had a glow when she said this. At such times the children looked patient; they supposed it must be so, because she was an adult and their teacher; and they believed her with the same manner of believing which those of them who went to Sunday school teachers were pushed into explanation of various matters set forth in the Old Testament, or gave reckless descriptions of heaven. That is to say, the children did not challenge or deny; already they had been driven into habits of resignation and were passing out of the age when childhood is able to reject adult nonsense.

Ramsey Milholland did not know whether the English language was beautiful or not; he never thought about it. Moreover, though his deeper inwardly hated "German," he liked his German teacher, and it was pleasant to look at her when that glow came upon her face.

"You bet your life I hate her," Teacher's Pet, that's what I call her."

HOW TWO WOMEN ESCAPED OPERATIONS

Doctor Advised Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my testimonial will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do them as much good as it did me."—Mrs. WM. LOCKMAN, 613 N. 4th St., St. Joseph, Mo.

White Plains, N. Y.—"I had such a pain that I could hardly walk and the doctor said that I needed an operation. I was sick for a year before I started taking your medicine and I could not work. I saw your advertisement in a little book and that is how I came to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and the capsules and prescription recommended. I am doing all my work and have gained twenty pounds. I am taking the medicines still, but I feel fine. You have my permission to use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. MARY MARK, 37 Hamilton Ave., White Plains, N. Y.

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the commoner ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors, or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same.

When disturbing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

As He Understood It.

Robert came home from Sunday school not long ago humming the music of the closing hymn, "Jesus is seeking the humble heart."

"What is that you are humming, Robert?" asked his mother. "I haven't heard you say the words yet."

"Don't you know, mother?" answered Robert, much surprised. "It's Jesus sneaking through Humboldt park."—Buffalo Express.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE DOES IT

When shoes pinch or rub bunions ache, get a package of ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes. It takes the sting out of corns and bunions, gives instant relief to smarting, aching, swollen feet. 1,600,000 pounds of powder for the feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war.—Advertisement.

Your New Home

should be made artistic, sanitary and livable.

These walls should be Alabastined in the latest, up-to-the-minute nature color tints. Each room should reflect your own individuality and the treatment throughout be a complete perfect harmony in colors.

The walls of the old home, whether mansion or cottage, can be made just as attractive, just as sanitary, through the intelligent use of

Alabastine

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

It is absolutely necessary if you expect Alabastine results that you ask for and secure Alabastine.

Avoid kalsomines under various names and insist on the package with the cross and circle printed in red. That is the only way to be sure you are getting the genuine Alabastine.

Alabastine is easy to mix and apply, lasting in its results, and absolutely sanitary.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

Friday Mr. Bright presented before the assembly his viewpoint on joyriding. He thinks joyriding is bad for one's nerves and the dust is bad for one's complexion. The result of the lecture was the passage of a law forbidding the importation or the exportation of the excitement, pleasure and longing of joyriding.

Gertrude Winnis was absent Friday. Her climbing ability and her long arms made her a valuable personage for washing windows at house cleaning time.

HORSE AND MULE

PRODUCTION TOO LOW

A comparison of the 1910 and 1920 census show an increase of 526,663 horses and mules during the ten year period while the figures on horse and mule colts show a decrease of 637,663 colts in 1919 as compared with 1909.

The losses per year are about 500,000 greater than the number of colts coming three to fill the vacancies. Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America, predicts that this decrease will continue for the next four years when the scarcity of good work animals will raise prices to the point where more breeding will be done and in a period of over production.

This periodical rise and fall in prices is well illustrated by the figures since 1878. They show on the average that prices increased for ten years they decreased for about the same length of time with the same increase and decrease during succeeding ten year periods. Prices are now at the point of beginning to increase.

While tractors, trucks and automobiles have replaced horses to some extent there is a very large per cent of work that apparently will always be done by horses or mules.

Horses are replacing trucks for some kinds of work as hauling short distances through crowded city traffic and hauls where numerous stops are made such as retail milk routes, delivery and express wagons.

Tractors on the average replace or displace two horses.

The figures and facts as far would indicate that those who begin raising colts now will be just in time to sell during a period of good prices.

The Spring Cankerworm

This is the worm that last year ate the leaves from any of the fruit trees in this locality.

The Cankerworm passes the winter in the pupal stage in the ground under the trees. The adult insect emerges from the ground during March or April and the females lay their eggs under loose scales on the bark. The males have well developed wings but the females are practically wingless and for this reason cannot fly to new territory so eggs are deposited in the trees that were infested the previous year.

The eggs begin to hatch about the time foliage begins to appear and the worm become full grown in three or four weeks. They then drop or crawl to the ground, burrow in the soil and remain there until the next spring.

They may be controlled by spraying with arsenate of lead at the rate of two pounds of powdered arsenate to fifty gallons of water when the leaves are small, preferably one-fourth inch across and repeat one week later.

If the foliage is eaten for two or three successive seasons the tree will likely be killed so it is important to destroy this pest before it destroys the trees.

The Farm Bureau Decennial

The chief feature of the Farm Bureau Decennial celebration at DeKalb, June 30, is to be a pageant in which hundreds of farmers will be actors, to illustrate the history and ideals of a farm bureau movement. Miss Nina Lampkin, who will direct the pageant, arrived in Illinois last week from Jacksonville, Fla., where she has finished directing a pageant of 3,000 people. She is now conferring with officials of the state university and the Illinois Agricultural association.

The Farm Bureau Decennial celebration is unique and different from the state picnic in that every county must contribute its due part if the thing is to be a success.

The DeKalb local people are alive with enthusiasm over the coming event and are doing everything that a community could possibly do to prepare itself as host to the Illinois Farm Bureau movement. No expense, or effort is to be spared to show every visitor the best of hospitality and entertainment.

The state university has gone into the thing without reservation, contributing brains, time and money. Members of the faculty are serving on the various committees and have distinguished themselves by the zeal and thought they have put into the plans.

The A. F. B. F. has spared no effort to contribute its share to the big event. All of the officials of the national farm bureau and the entire executive committee, including the presidents of twelve other state farm bureau federations, will be at DeKalb for the celebration.

The I. A. A. is leaving no stone unturned to do its share in the contribution of everything that will go to make the celebration a success.

Other farm organizations will have their representatives there as visitors.

Preparations for the pageant will begin immediately. The tentative title, "Forward! Farm Bureau" has been selected.

Postoffice Issues Suggestions and Facts for Public

Suggestions for the observance of Postal Improvement Week—all the week throughout the year.

The employees of the postoffice department, from postmaster general on down, are striving to make the service as nearly perfect as is humanly possible—but they cannot do it alone, you must do your part. Learn the proper way to do that part. Your ignorance or carelessness is a hindrance to the work of the department, and to yourself. You can help by:

1. Patience while asking for service, when postmaster and assistants are both doing their best to serve.

2. Looking over mail before taking from office to avoid taking a possible piece from another in their box by mistake.

3. Careful packing and tying parcel post.

4. Seeing that letters are securely stamped, and addressed before placing in box. Tie large package of letters or hand to employee—all same side up and right side up. If possible, sort by states or offices.

5. Placing address low enough on envelope that address won't be canceled.

6. Placing return card on letters or packages, also inside parcels.

7. Don't find fault and scold the postmaster or carrier if the parcel ordered the day before hasn't arrived.

8. Mail parcels or letter early.

9. Keep a supply of stamps on hand, so that the carrier don't have to stop in the cold or rain to pick up your pennies, or the postmaster stop his work to sell you a stamp five or six times a day.

10. Register all valuable letters and insure all valuable parcels.

11. Be sure to place address at lower right hand corner and return address at upper left hand corner. Very often, when these are reversed, parcels are returned to the office of mailing, causing considerable delay.

Postal service for rural patrons can be materially improved through the establishment of a better understanding on the part of the public of some of the difficulties met with by the carrier in the performance of his duties.

It is the desire of the department and its purpose, to provide adequate and convenient service, so far as may be possible, to all persons residing in rural communities, but this end can not be attained without the full cooperation of the patrons in the efforts of postmasters and carriers to serve them promptly, regularly, and satisfactorily.

Whatever facilitates the work of the carrier is of direct benefit to the patrons, for the greater the ease and speed with which a carrier may cover his route, the earlier and better the service afforded.

So, patrons of rural delivery can greatly help themselves by helping their carrier, seeing to it that roads are kept in good condition and promptly opened after storms, by keeping the approaches to their boxes clear, and by promptly and willingly correcting any irregularities affecting their boxes when asked to do so.

The main purpose of the "Postal Improvement Week" is to impress patrons of the mail service as to how they may assist in expediting the delivery and dispatch of their own mail. Rural patrons can assist in this matter by placing stamps on their letters instead of placing unstamped mail in the boxes together with money for the purchase of the required postage. This delays the carrier and prevents the patrons from receiving their mail as expeditiously as they otherwise would.

Money for the purchase of money orders should not be left in the boxes, but should be handed to the carrier and a receipt obtained.

Below is a schedule of the arrival at and dispatch of mails from your local office. Note carefully; don't bring in your letters or parcels at the last minute—mail trains won't wait; don't rush to the office as soon as you hear the train whistle and then stand about making remarks because the mail is not all distributed at once; it is just possible the work means almost as well as you do; and don't rush in when you should know that it is time for the arrival of mail and complain because the windows are down and everyone busy. All of which means, help and do not thoughtlessly hinder the service which means so much to you.

The benevolence committee is collecting centenary subscriptions. All who understand the almost miraculously marvelous wonders being worked with their centenary money are more than glad to keep their subscriptions paid up to date.

The Sunday school is welcoming new scholars almost every Sunday. Why should not everybody who is not sick in bed be in Sunday school every Sunday, except those needed to wait on the sick?

The first anthem by the full choir since its reorganization was given last Sunday morning. It was a most inspiring piece of sacred music and rendered with fine energy and expression.

The Epworth league was founded in May, thirty-three years ago. Every year the anniversary is celebrated and new officers in the local chapters are elected and installed. The election of officers occurs this week and the coming Sunday evening will be the celebration of the anniversary at the church hour, 7:45. The regular league devotional service will be held as usual at 7 o'clock. Then at 7:45 the new cabinet of officers will be installed with impressive ceremonies, including an address by the pastor, and appropriate special music.

Last Sunday morning the theme was, The Inner Shrine. Vivid description of the ancient Hebrew tabernacle and temple was followed with exposition of the rich symbolism and its meaning for us today. The outer court of the tabernacle, The Court of the Gentiles, was for everybody. Inside this court, was the Holy Place, where were the smoking altars and the sacrifices and the sprinkling of the blood of atonement. This was a very sacred place. Here the service was such as to break the worshiper's heart with a sense of the depth of his sin and the clear implication that if he had his just deserts shed, the animal which would be shed. But the service also spoke of the mercy of God, and the animal's blood was shed in the man's stead, and the man could be forgiven.

But inside of this Holy Place, was a still holier place, The Holiest Place, or Holy of Holies. Into this holiest place none could go but the High priest alone—and he only once a year. And he must never go in without carrying blood to make atonement for his own sins and the sins of the people.

In this Holy of Holies was the ark of the Covenant, the pure gold chest, containing the Covenant. The Covenant was the contract between God and His people. It consisted of God's laws and the people's recorded pledge to keep those laws. Just above the ark containing the Covenant was the mercy seat, the place of the immediate presence of God. Mark the significant imagery: The place of the soul's meeting with God is at the mercy seat, just over the agreement to obey God's commands. No mercy seat anywhere but where the soul agrees to obey God. No one can come to terms with God without absolute obedience.

And the pure gold ark and pure gold Mercy seat, reveal that the approach to God and fellowship with Him can never be cheap.

This Holy of Holies was separated from the Holy Place by curtains and the opening for entrance was a fine curtain or veil, called The Veil of the Temple. None but the High priest could pass this veil. When the Son of God expired in majestic grandeur of almighty love on the cross, that Veil of the Temple split from top to bottom, while the earth was reeling with earthquake shock and the sun was dark.

Here, on the cross was made the real sacrifice, the atonement for all the sins of all the people of the earth in all ages. Christ is henceforth the High Priest and the only priest. Henceforth no man can profess to be a priest at all and offer sacrifice for sin, without blasphemous presumption. The veil that shut the multitude from the Holiest Place is rent. The Holy of Holies is open for all. And not once a year, but always. Henceforth all who follow Christ dwell daily and hourly in the Holy of Holies, where they have access by His blood.

Some Floor Paint Facts Worth Knowing

DO you know that two coats of the best floor paint are less than 1-100 of an inch thick?

You may think it ridiculous to expect such a thin paint film to stand up under all the wear and tear that a floor gets.

Still, that's exactly what Lowe Brothers' Hard Drying Floor Paint does. It stands up because it's made of pigments and extra tough varnishes that have great wear-resistance.

If you've been disappointed with your painted floors, probably you haven't used a paint made especially for painting floors.

Lowe Brothers' dries hard and stays hard. It's long-lived, too. Come in and see the sample panels.

Sanitary House-cleaning

—essential, it won't be denied

The myriad armies of hostile germs seeking always victims find no suitable locations in quarters that are absolutely clean.

That's no news.

But it is a highly impressive fact that absolute cleaning of floors, rugs, walls, hangings, upholstery, bedding can be accomplished by mechanical means only—by a vacuum cleaner run by electricity, that gets to work when connected to any lamp socket.
